

No Charge

What then is my reward? That in my preaching I may present the gospel free of charge, so as not to make full use of my right in the gospel. 1 Corinthians 9.18

Like the Apostle Paul, we don't charge anyone for any ministry. And like the Apostle Paul, we can only do this because church members support our ministry by giving.

The Bible teaches us not to give 'reluctantly or under compulsion' (2 Corinthians 9.7). That means you shouldn't give the church one cent more than you're happy to give.

But if you are happy to give to help our church continue to 'present the gospel free of charge' and even grow our ministry, this guide will show you some ways to do that.

How Much?

There are no rules about how much Christians should give to church. This may surprise those who've been taught to give 10% of their income, based on the Old Testament law of the 'tithe'. But Christians are 'not under law' (Romans 6.14 etc.).

The tithe is a great starting-point to think about giving. But the freedom we have in Christ means that some of us (e.g. those in financial hardship) might give less than 10% of our income, while others (e.g. those with well-paying jobs) might give more.

Also, Christians don't only give to church. We also give to charity, missions, and so on. So how much should we give to our church as opposed to those things? Again, there are no rules, but here are some questions that might help you make a decision:

- What percentage of my income would I gladly give to support the church?
- How much were the churches expenses (per adult per week) last year?*
- What's the current gap between the church's expenses and income?
- Does the church have any large projects that require funding to advance?

Of course, the amount you give isn't fixed. If your financial situation declines, you should feel free to reduce your giving. If it improves or if the church is struggling to meet expenses and you're in a position to help, you might want to increase your giving.

* This was approximately $45 in 2021. Of course, some members gave less than this, and others gave more.

Types of Giving

Regular Giving

When church members have a regular income, it's helpful—for them and for the church—to decide an amount of money to give on a regular basis. A 'regular basis' could mean weekly, fortnightly, monthly etc., depending on your situation.

One-Off Giving

Church members or visitors might want to make a one-off donation in addition to, or instead of, regular giving. You might want to do this in addition to regular giving, to help pay for a specific project, or to help the church meet a budget deficit. You might want to do this instead of regular giving if they don't have a regular income.

Bequest Giving

Churches have achieved some of their most ambitious projects (e.g. renovating the church building in 2019) thanks to people leaving money to the church in a will. The will can specify the way this money will be spent or it can give the church discretion.
